

Everyone deserves to be loved.
In the seas of humanity, everyone becomes our brothers and sisters. Our commonality is that we are all born from the same Source, as God is the Source of us all.

We are all striving to wake up to the oneness consciousness that indivisibly binds our hearts and souls together.

In other words, what makes us, in our humanity, brothers and sisters of each other . . . is that we are all born from the same Source of Love. And, we are all, as Gourasana spoke in 1988, “delicate flowers in a harsh environment”.

No matter the cause of our differences or similarities, have no preferences, no judgments, no better than, no less than, no leaving anybody behind.

Rather, keep embracing the consciousness of unity and inclusion.
